Volume 40 Issue 1

Spring 2007

This begins the 40th continuous year of publication of the Weedman Newsletter. It was started in March 1968 by Marianne and Paul Montgomery.

We hope you all weathered the winter without serious illness or inconvenience!

This issue marks the 40th year of the Weedman Newsletter. It began in March 1968 when Marianne and Paul Montgomery started to communicate with family members on historical and genealogical findings. Little did they know they had begun a project that could stretch 40 years and continue on from there!

Marianne Montgomery was inducted into the Weedman Hall of Fame not only for the contributions that she and Paul made to the family for the Newsletter but also for her numerous hours of hard labor in libraries, courthouses and other places looking for Weedman information. Marianne remains our Editor Emeritus and is held in extremely high regard by everyone.

Subscription Update

In our last issue, we asked for those who had not contributed to the support of the Newsletter to update their subscriptions if they wanted to continue to receive the publication. Response was fantastic!

Special recognition goes to a number of people whose contributions far exceeded expectations including: Richard D. Weedman, Jan Bruner, Sally Lawlor, George Perry Weedman, Marianne Montgomery, Carl L. Weedman, Neva Weedman, Beryl Poteat, George-Anne Planck, Bill and Thea Weedman, Sandra Harbison, Kathy Fislar, and a number of others.

The cost to mail the Newsletter continues to escalate and it is noted that first class postage will go up again in May to $0.42 per ounce. Copy costs also are increasing and as a result, we have removed a number of subscribers who did not respond. We don't want the Newsletter to go to anyone who no longer has interest and it is a normal development to lose some subscribers over time. We did a post card reminder recently and that has generated a good response.

Our subscriber list has been pared from 160 to 120 or so. We are highly appreciative of those who continue to support the Newsletter. Thank You!

While we are on the subject of communications, don't forget to take a look at the family web site on occasion. We have some ideas to enhance this and have found some sites we consider as superb. But, it takes time, effort and creativity to have a great site and that is what we would like to achieve.

A Trip to the National Archives

One advantage of having family in the Northern Virginia and Washington D.C. area is the opportunity to do family research at the National Archives. In February, we renewed a special research card that provides access to original files for many records. In a limited time, we were able to review the Civil War pension files for Catherine Keefover, whose son, Jacob Keefover, died in VA and for as well as that for Delilah Hand Weedman.

The Civil War pension files are a goldmine for genealogical information in many cases. But, they also must be taken in context. When applying for a pension, it was in the applicant's best interest to show that they were destitute and if rejected, the poorhouse might be the next stop. In reality, the applicant's were rarely in such dire straits.

Delilah Hand married Asa Weedman, a son of John Huhn Weedman, Sr. on 20 October 1836 in IL. Asa died in 1866 or 1868 and left a large family. Two sons, John William Weedman and Norman A. Weedman, served in the Civil War.

John William Weedman died in the Andersonville prison in Georgia where so many died of malnutrition. His death was on 15 November 1864. In her application for a pension, a statement relative to Norman Weedman indicated that while he survived the war, he never married and as "never right" after he returned from the service.

The pension file was quite thick and contained one of the earliest pre-nuptial agreements we have seen (there was one earlier one for Barbara Weedman Rifle Kern(s)). In addition, there were numerous letters from neighbors and "friends" some of whom stated that her husband, Edmund Adams, could not support her and she deserved the pension of $12.00 per month. Others, and there were many, stated that she was actually quite well off. Some stated that when Asa Weedman died that she and each of the children received an inheritance of $1,300 or so. In addition, some stated that Mr. Adams was well off in his own right. Included in the folder were letters to the President of the U.S. and to the Secretary of War objecting to her pension! Due to the thickness of the file, I failed to make copies of many of the more interesting and pertinent papers so need to return to accomplish that. It appeared to me that she was successful in obtaining the pension, but due to objections it was later withdrawn.

Another aspect of interest was the fact that Delilah Adams, was residing in Louisburg, Kansas much of the time while applying and defending her pension. But also, that she intended to return to Webster City, Iowa. The pension application process began in 1890 and continued for a number of years. The fact that she could apparently move easily between Louisburg and Webster City in those days, when transportation was more limited, was interesting.

Delilah Adams did return to Hamilton Co., IA and died in Woolstock, IA on 13 September 1909. She is buried in Webster City, IA.

Another file that contained extremely interesting information was an application for a mother's pension by Catherine Keefover who also had two sons in the Civil War. She was the wife of James Keefover whose mother was Catherine (Weedman) (Huhn) Keefover about whom a article will begin in the next issue.

One son, Jacob Keefover, died of "brain fever" while serving with his unit near Richmond, VA. He was never injured in battle and may never have actually fought in the War. In the folder at the National Archives is a letter from the Commanding Officer of Jacob Keefover advising his parents of his death. A copy of the letter will appear in the Newsletter as part of the article on Catherine Keefover.

There was no argument against the pension for Catherine Keefover who stated she would be dependent on the income to sustain her and her husband. She received a pension until her death.

There will be another trip to the National Archives in early summer and we intend to obtain copies of pertinent papers in other Weedman family member files.

INTERVIEW WITH CHARLES KENNETH WEEDMAN & ELNA ALICE LUMPKIN WEEDMAN 1982

This interview is from an hour-long tape with a transcription of 72 pages that I have edited. I have taken excerpts from general interest stories of how these families lived. People are spoken of by first name, nick name or Mom and Dad and I have placed their full name and dates after their spoken name the first time they appear in the text.

Tape of Charles Kenneth Weedman (CKW) (Dec. 6, 1912 – Aug. 27, 1990) and Elna Alice Lumpkin Weedman (ELW) (Feb. 27, 1913 – June 12, 2001): Interviewed by Kenneth Russell Weedman (KRW) in 1982 at their home in Little Rock, Arkansas.

KRW: Now, tell me what you did on Sunday afternoon when you were a boy (Charles Kenneth Weedman 1912-90).

CKW: My daddy (Norman Benedict Weedman 1876-1943) would hook up that little red horse to the hack and we'd go for a ride. What's a hack - some people call it a buggy. It has one seat up front, but two people could sit on it. Mom (Sarah Hilma Malmstrom Weedman 1881-1953) & Dad would sit up front, and she'd hold the baby and he'd drive the horse. Well, according to when it was. I was the baby sometimes, and Elizabeth (Elizabeth Weedman 1915-1987) was the baby some times, and then Dorothy (Dorothy Weedman 1918-2005) was the baby sometimes. But Bill (William Russell Weedman 1925-1957) never was the baby in that hack.

KRW: What did you do, Mama (Elna Alice Lumpkin Weedman 1913-2001)? Did you go riding with on Sunday afternoon?

ELW: We had a Surrey with a Fringe on top. Lucy (Janie Lucille Lumpkin 1915-2003) and I rode in the back. Mama (Lou Craig Lumpkin 1892-47) held Claude (Claude Cleo Lumpkin, Jr. 1917-95) in her lap. I saw my first prairie chicken

CKW: Well, what did you do with Anne (Anne Craig Lumpkin 1919)?

ELW: She wasn't born daddy. I saw my first prairie chickens run across the road.

ELW: And Daddy (Claude Cleo Lumpkin 1891-70) and Mama pointed them out, and Daddy remarked at the time "I rarely see a prairie chicken" and he called our attention to it.

KRW: What year was that, do you remember?

ELW: I wasn't very old. I couldn't have been, but I remember it vividly because Daddy said... Daddy stopped the horse, and when they scurried across the road he said "look at the prairie chickens." They looked scrawny to me.

KRW: Well did you all have a seat in that surrey with the fringe on top.

ELW: No, just the one seat on the front. And like daddy said on theirs, Mama put a quilt (in the back bed).

CKW: Kind of like a pickup truck bed back there.

ELW: And Lucy and I sat on (the quilt). He was out to survey his farmland, and to see how the colored people were working on the farms. And that's why we took the ride in the buggy. We had a car, but you went in the Surrey because you could stop and go and look and wouldn't get stuck. We didn't have roads that a car would or could take you over.

CKW: It was just all dirt roads then. We didn't have much gravel roads then.

KRW: That was out there around the houses that had the breezeways right daddy?
Living quarters were on one side and the kitchen and all were on the other.

ELW: That's right.

KRW: Why would those houses have those breezeways?

---

CKW: Makes them cooler. They didn't have air conditioning then.

TAPE STOPS, THEN STARTS AGAIN.

KRW: You worked in the sawmill and what was your job?

CKW: I did everything that you could do in a sawmill. I set blocks, worked on the carriage, fired the boiler and I off burden, run the cut-off saw, and toted slabs and run the edger.

ELW: Cut a skunk in two one time.

CKW: Yeah. They'd brought a log in one time that had a hollow in it and Dad put it on the carriage and I set it out there. He said to set it out there a ways, so I did, and he run it through there. That skunk was in that hollow in that log. It just sawed that skunk in two. Man, you talk about stink.

KRW: What did your dad say?

CKW: That it smelled so bad he could nearly taste it.

ELW: They were so sick. They all had to go home.

KRW: You had to shut down that day?

CKW: Well after we ate lunch we did.

KRW: After you ate lunch ... aw, shoot.

ELW: He told me they vomited. It was horrible.

CKW: No, we didn't vomit. There were some of them felt like they wanted to vomit.

KRW: Who all was working there that day? Granddad and who else with you, Bernard (Norman Bernard Weedman 1911-55)?

CKW: No, he wasn't there (Bernard). There were eight or ten of us working there. I don't remember all the names, or who they all were. He gave us the jobs that you had to pay the highest salaries. One of us worked on the carriage; the other would fire the boiler. It paid two bits an hour for those jobs. And others, they just paid twenty cents. It was about...1930-31. During the Great Recession or Depression. Whatever you want to call it.

KRW: Well, you went to work on the riverboats after that didn't you?

CKW: I worked on a Snag boat C.B. Reese, and the Steamboat Arkansas.

ELW: What was the barge?

CKW: I worked on a barge on the Black River, except it wasn't self-propelled. The Harve Goodman wasn't it?

KRW: Well, if it wasn't self-propelled, what did you do?

CKW: Well, you floated. Float down the river on it.

KRW: What was your job on the barge? Pulling crosscut saw and what else?

CKW: No, I was a clerk on the barge.

(Conclusion. Full article to appear on the Weedman web site at www.weedman.org)
